Top Aides at Simon and Schuster Hired by Knopf

By HENRY RAYMONT

Simon and Schuster, the publishing house, has lost three key executives to Alfred A. Knopf, a subsidiary of Random and that they suggested Knopf, Random House and lieb an offer. the Radio Corporation of America, offered them "wider professional opportunities." He said he agreed on the wisdom of the change.

sible.'

Shaping Best Sellers

Mr. Gottlieb, one of the best-known young editors in the trade, has been with Simon and Schuster for 12 years and had worked closely with Mr. Schulte, an administrator, and Miss Bourne, a leading adver-Mr. Gottlieb, one of the best-Miss Bourne, a leading advertising copy writer who began tising copy writer who began "Oh, I'm very glad indeed to using copy writer who began her association with the publishing house 29 years ago. Together they have shaped such best sellers as Joseph Heller's "Catch-22," Robert Creighton's "The Secret of Santa Victoria" and Chaim Potok's "The Cref said: "Getting this Chosen."

Chosen."

Mr. Gottlieb said yesterday that his years at Simon and Schuster have been "fantastically happy" and that he considered Mr. Schwed "a valued friend" but that lately he had begun to feel a need for "new incentives" and "more opportunity."

Through a mutual friend Mr. Cerf said: "Getting this champion team is a red letter day for us. Getting any one of them would have been a coup for us. But they're coming in as a unit and they will be in complete control of their editorial operation."

Mr. Cerf said: "Getting this champion team is a red letter day for us. Getting any one of them would have been a coup for us. But they're coming in as a unit and they will be in complete control of their editorial operation."

Mr. Cerf said: "Getting this champion team is a red letter day for us. Getting any one of them would have been a coup for us. But they're coming in as a unit and they will be in complete control of their editorial operation."

Mr. Cerf said: "Getting this champion team is a red letter day for us. But they're coming in as a unit and they will be in complete control of their editorial operation."

Mr. Cerf said: "Getting any one of them would have been a coup for us. But they're coming in as a unit and they will be in complete control of their editorial operation."

Gottlieb, Chief Editor, Leaving executive committee is Joseph With Anthony Schulte and Nina Bourne

They are Anthony Schulte had been sales manager at Si- and Latin-American writers in-associate publisher; Robert Got- mon and Schuster before join- creasingly into American book associate publisher; Robert Gottlieb, editor in chief, and Nina Bourne, vice president in charge of advertising.

The move a dramatic one in the publishing world, was confirmed yesterday by Peter Schwed, publisher of Simon &
Schuster, and by Robert Bernstein, Random House's president.

They said that Mr. Gottlieb Would Jeave sometime next

mon and Schuster before joinling Random House 10 years stores. Jean Largeguy, the French novelist, and Gilberto
Freyre, the Brazilian anthropologist, are Knopf authors.

Mr. Gottlieb has concentrated on young writers, among them
the novelists Edna O'Brien, Doris Lessing, Rona Jaffe and Bruce Jay Friedman.

May Receive Stock Options

Mr. Schwed said that the three executives had informed Mr. Bernstein and Bennet A. him of their decision this week Cerf, chairman of the board of and that they suggested Knopf, Random House, made Mr. Gott- will be considered to discovere the contraction of the will be will be and that they suggested Knopf, lich or offer.

in college Alfred A. Knopf was of the change.

"I have worked with them in complete harmony and with the highest regard for their ability for over a decade. This is the friendliest divorce possible."

In conege Alred A. Knop was the conege and the most exciting name in publishing. When I was told I would have an opportunity to revitalize Knopf together with Random House, what more sible."

Mr. Knopf Not Involved

Alfred A. Knopf, now 75

Through a mutual friend, Mr. trative structure, which is Gottlieb's feelings were con-headed by William A. Koshland, veyed to Mr. Bernstein, who president. The chairman of the

C. Lesser, and Angus Cameron is senior editor.

Since its merger with Random House in 1960, Knopf has continued to bring European would save sometime next plating a change we naturally depending on when he completes work on Simon and Schuster's spring list. Mr. Schulte and Miss Bourne may stay for a month or two.

Mr. Schwed said that the Mr. Schwed said the Mr. Schwed said that the Mr. Schwed said that the Mr. Schwed said the Mr. Schwed said that the Mr. Schwed said the Mr. Schwed said that the Mr. Schwed said the Mr. Schwed said that the Mr. Schwed said that the Mr. Schwed said the

ary. It is understood, however,

STAT